Dear Secretaries Napolitano, Geithner and Clinton:

On behalf of the American Council on Education and the associations listed below, I write to request your assistance for Libyan nationals currently studying in the United States on student visas, almost all of whom are fully funded by the Libyan government as sponsored students.

At the current time, there are approximately 2,000 Libyan nationals studying at colleges and universities across the country, many accompanied by their spouses and children. Because of recent events in Libya and the subsequent freezing of assets, these students and their families have been placed in situations of great uncertainty. Given that the dire situation in Libya makes it impossible for them to safely return home, these individuals need an option to maintain their lawful immigration status and to resolve their uncertain funding situation.

It is urgent that these students are provided with some administrative immigration relief as soon as possible, particularly the 190 students on J Visas, which are set to expire on May 31. We urge the Department of Homeland Security to designate Libya for Temporary Protected Status (TPS) and in the interim, provide some appropriate administrative remedy for those who would otherwise be required to leave the United States and return to Libya until TPS becomes available.

In addition, it is our understanding that the Obama administration is considering unfreezing Libyan assets in this country for humanitarian purposes. When these funds become available, we urge you to use some of them to support Libyan students and exchange visitors currently in the United States. Some colleges and universities have extended funds to provide emergency housing, food and health insurance to these students and their dependents, but they will be unable to support them long-term.

The presence of international students in our colleges and universities adds much to campus learning communities. In light of the uncertain and potentially dangerous situation in their home country, we ask that you move expeditiously to provide assistance to these students and their families in this difficult time.

Sincerely,
